for the Environment, Nature Conservation and Nuclear Safety

We're at your service!

The civic communication division

Welcome to our civic communication service

- ❓ Do you have questions about climate action, the search for a nuclear waste repository site or nature conservation? Are you interested in electric mobility, the right way to dispose of waste or funding programmes for environmental protection?
- ❓ Would you like to know how the Federal Ministry for the Environment, Nature Conservation and Nuclear Safety (BMU) is structured and how it works?
- ❓ Would you like to visit us and get to know the ministry's Berlin office?

The civic communication team is happy to help! We can answer your questions and we have exciting, up-to-date information on hand, covering the many topic areas of the BMU.

Getting in touch

Your questions and opinions are very important to us. Annually, we handle around 15,000 written inquiries from the public. There are several ways to contact us. Send us a letter, an email or a fax. You can also fill out a contact form on our website. We will respond as quickly and as comprehensively as possible.

Services for visitors

Would you like to have your questions answered on location? Come by for a visit! We regularly hold informational events for national and international visitor groups in our visitor information centre at the Berlin office of the BMU near Potsdamer Platz. These events familiarise visitors with the structure and responsibilities of the ministry and give them insight into its political work. You can also take a tour and learn about the ministry's office building, which unites an eventful history with modern, sustainable architecture.

BMU – Visitor information centre:

Stresemannstrasse 128-130
10117 Berlin, Germany

Informational events for visitor groups:

Mondays through Fridays
by appointment
